Illouz studies how individual conceptions of love overlap with the world of cliches and images she calls the 'Romantic Utopia'. This utopia lives in the collective imagination of the nation and is built on images that unite amorous and economic activities in the rituals of dating, lovemaking, and marriage.

Consuming the Romantic Utopia raises issues and reaches conclusions that any student of modern relationships will find interesting and useful. According to Illouz, romantic love "has been ambiguously incorporated into the culture of consumer capitalism." As one consequence of this, "the inequalities constitutive of the market have been transferred to the romantic bond itself." (p. 22)
