Increasingly, clinical nursing care is being provided in the home. This basic introduction to home care demonstrates how to begin the visit, how home care differs from hospital care, and which concerns are unique to the home setting. The text focuses on the central aspects of home care, and provides six real-life case studies. Charts and tables are used throughout to summarize information and highlight key points. Every chapter concludes with a summary, posing questions for consideration, or a post test and answer sheet.

As a result of the aging of our population and the fact that Americans are living longer than ever before, more Americans are developing chronic illnesses that require long-term care, and we all face increasingly difficult challenges and more transitions in our lives than ever before. One of the most difficult transitions that Americans must face for themselves and their loved ones is the "final move" - a transition that's made by over 40% of the American population - the move to a nursing home. Rich, poor, or somewhere in between, 99 percent of Americans can't afford to
