Where natural light is truly limited, the right white will work wonders in all areas of your kitchen. This includes the floor, the first element to be installed in your new kitchen and the largest horizontal, light-reflecting surface. A low-sheen floor will be best for both light reflection and maintenance.

Kitchen. Peeling, scraping, cutting, chopping or even just reading recipes - unless you do all this in the daylight, there will always be times when you need good lighting in the kitchen to help you see what you are doing. There is nothing worse than trying to work in a dimly light kitchen and as more and as more people are favouring home cooked food, if you are one of them, don't let yourself down by not having good, stylish and effective lighting to help with preparation and cooking.
