This series about a widow who moves into her father in laws house along with her children ran for three seasons and actually was a pretty good show. It was Wilford Brimley however who really made it what it was. The episodes were generally tame but always had a moral and lesson to be learned.

"Our House got me the resources to get back on my feet. My kids loved being in the Shelter and Little Learners; that was the first time they really got to interact with other kids. Now, if I see another woman in a similar situation to me, I recommend them to go to Our House."

I loved "our house" by Louise Candlish - I couldn't put it down, it was truly addictive, compelling and hypnotic. It was by far the best psychological thriller I've read for quite a while and I expect it to do extremely well in the bestsellers chart. A family moves into the house they've just bought in Trinity Avenue. Nothing strange about that.
